Valuable Items Arrive For Benefit Auction

Items for the St. John's Military School Foundation Benefit Auction are arriving daily at the School according to Mrs. Donna Vanier, Development Director. The auction is scheduled for Thursday, May 13 in Heritage Hall of the Salina Bicentennial Center.

Invitations to the social function and auction will be mailed in early April.

One of the top auction items will be a Pontiac 1982 Firebird Transam. It will be on display on campus before the auction. Mrs. Vanier suggests that it might make an "excellent graduation gift".

Several stained glass windows and bright, colorful afghans will go on the auction block.

Mrs. Rice, mother of "old boy" Larry Rice, Class of '55, has again made and given an embroidered quilt.

Parents of a Cadet are donating a week in their Colorado condo.

"Old Boy" Tom Dickson, a prominent Colorado sculptor, has given a Bronze Eagle.

Other items include paintings and art work, handmade clocks, Navajo rugs, a power rake, "walking" lawn sprinklers, Black Hills gold jewelry, a doll house, camera and a "Barnwood"

A Walk To The Cross

"During Lent it is traditional in many churches to have the service of the Stations of the Cross. The Corps observes this service on Fridays as a Lenten discipline. It is a very moving experience to have 200 voices respond to the 14 stations as we walk with our Lord from the time he is given the Cross to the time His body is placed in the tomb.

This is a time for all of us to reflect on the sacrifices that He made for us. It is a time for us to count our blessings which are so freely given. Lent is a time for reflection - a time to pray. 'Lord help me to correct my faults and my weaknesses.' It is a time for us to look at our lives and change them where necessary.

'Almighty God, we pray you graciously to behold this your family, for whom our Lord Jesus Christ was willing to be betrayed, and given into the hands of sinners, and to suffer death upon the cross; who now lives and reigns with you and the Holy Spirit, one God, for ever and ever.

Amen.

(Book of Common Prayer, Collect for Good Friday)

God Bless you and have a holy Lent,

Fr. Norm†

Cadets Attend Play Workshop

All sophomore and junior English students attended a workshop on the play, "Come Back, Little Sheba" at the Community Building, McPherson, Ks. A video tape of the play produced by the McPherson Theatre Guild was viewed during classtime in February.

Mrs. Phyllis Rowland, English teacher, played the part of "Lola" in the production.

She said the purpose of the workshop was to study drama techniques, symbol and theme, and social implications. Studied were the AA methods of helping alcoholics and their families.

The Cadets read and studied the play and then wrote a short research paper on alcoholism. Mrs. Rowland said that the Cadets learned to take notes and outline their paper; to write an interesting introduction and conclusion, and to provide supporting evidence in an organized form, complete with footnotes and bibliography.

Want A Friend? Be A Friend

Friendships are essential! "Long-term happy friendships," wrote Dr. Theodore Rubin, author of Compassion and Self Hate, "indicate that a person has a strong sense of self-worth and the ability to give of him or herself without the fear of becoming depleted."

But what are the elements of friendship? Some would certainly include the following:

- Acceptance — Allow your friends to be themselves. If imperfect, remember that you are not perfect either.
- Assistance — Help when and where you can, and when you need help, ask for it. But that does not mean that you be used poorly or that you be too demanding.
- Loyalty — Honor a confidence and remain true to friends in good times or bad.
- Praise — Express your gratitude for having a particular friend. Congratulate success and laud talents.
- Honesty — Communicate openly and without fear. Don't bottle up feelings. A good friend will understand, even forgive, and the friendship will become stronger.
- Equality — Treat friends as equals. You are neither superior nor inferior. Forget envy and pride.
- Trust — Believe in your friend's goodness and worth as another human being.

The result of friendship? Antoine de Saint Exupery, the French author, put it this way: "With you, I do not have to exonerate myself, to plead, to prove. I find peace . . . I am grateful to you for accepting me as you find me . . . My friend, I need you as one needs height on which to breathe!"

Building America Together

Editor's Note: The following article is the text of Mike Hill's second place winning oration in the VFW's Voice of Democracy contest

The late president, John F. Kennedy, once said; "Ask not what your country can do for you - ask what you can do for your country". These words, spoken to a then dormant America, kindled a spark of rededication within the hearts of citizens to take an active role in the workings of our governmental system.

In today's society we often combat forces which tend to undermine our conventional set of morals: forces such as apathy and ignorance. In order to build America, as in the construction of any building, we must start at the ground and work our way up.

For a moment, let us envision America as a building, from early development to finished product. The population of America symbolizes construction workers, all striving for the accomplishment of a common goal. There are certain steps that must be taken before and during construction. Let us look at these steps in their proper order.

First, we must have a solid foundation. To symbolize this, we have the Constitution of the United States which provides for our basic and fundamental rights, such as life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. The right to own property and the ways and means to promote the general welfare.

With completion of the first stage, we begin to build the framework, firm and upholding in the face of adversity. In 1791, Congress adopted the Bill of Rights which gave the common man a new outlook on life. He was given the power to speak freely and express himself in print. He was free to assemble with his fellowman and live in peace rather than fear. He also gained the right to a fair and speedy trial and the right to have and bear arms. All of these based on the fact that rights are relative but not absolute, which in essence means a man can use his rights so long as they don't infringe upon others as well. The building we call America now begins to take shape.

Having accomplished stage two, we begin the third which is the addition of plumbing, wiring and air conditioning: the heart of the edifice. The Judicial branch of our government serves as the plumbing, all Watergate aside, which both giveth and taketh away. For wiring, the Legislative branch provides the spark needed to energize the governing body. The Executive branch serves as the air conditioning to heat or cool unhappy construction workers should such an emergency arise.

The late president, Lyndon B. Johnson spoke often of "The Great Society" saying: "If Americans remain unwilling and yield to their suspicions rather than truth, this, our Great Society shall perish".

You may ask; "Where does the real answer lie?" The answer, my friends, lies within the hearts of men. Americans of all kinds must face the hard reality that man is fallible, even though it may force him to look into a mirror and evaluate the faults which set him apart from his fellow man.

We don't need to create a new agency or put blame on government, we need to continue on to new and higher horizons and pass along to each other the ideas of freedom and equality. Nothing needs to be changed except our own individual attitudes.

I leave you with the knowledge that America, like our building, remains as yet unfinished. Unless Americans can look upon each other with kindness rather than contempt, building America together will be nothing but a dream.

In the National Rifle Association sectional, held in Topeka, Conquest was the high shooter. He placed first in the events of kneeling, prone and standing. Bradford placed first in kneeling and Little took first in off-hand. The team placed third in competition.

Conquest fired a 522 of a possible 600 at the Kansas State Rifle Association meet held March 13. Final results are not tabulated but SFC Sam Valley, Rifle Coach, feels that the SJMS two-man team should place third.

He said that Conquest's scores are probably high enough for him to take a first or second in kneeling and that Bradford should capture third in kneeling.
