1946 Crack Squad C.O. Leaps To Its Defense

"Here is one old boy who will leap to the barricades in defense of almost any good SJMS tradition, especially that of the Crack Squad.

"I am not sure from reading your interesting editorial in the March 22 "Skirmisher", but evidently there is doubt about the continuation of the Crack Squad. It's demise would certainly sadden me. The Crack Squad was always one of the distinctive things about St. John's, something which brought the School to the attention of people far beyond the campus. Looking back, I feel it had the advantage of providing a focus for student morale. Its renown made all the Cadets feel better.

"Of the myriad memories I treasure in the thirties and forties, few are stronger than the many which concern the Crack Squad. When I was in the grades, probably weighing no more than 68½ pounds soaking wet, I was honored to be in the color guard with . . . good night, who were my compatriots?—Bob Miller, Fritz Schoeb, Gene Pade, Bob Austin, Jack or Jerry Vanier—I don't trust my memory. We just stood there while the big boys tore the floors apart and threw the old (were they 1897 Springfield?) rifles around. I do remember a trip to Tulsa in about 1939 and eating hamburgers with pickles and a coke for breakfast to stretch our tremendous traveling meal allowance. And ten performances at a Wichita theater where a Frankenstein picture was showing. . . . And always the performances at the formal dances in the old gym, carefully stepping over the furnace grate on the north side of the basketball court.

"For some reason, at some time between my sixth and tenth grades at SJMS, the Crack Squad faded from existence. One of the things I am proudest of is the effort Fritz Schoeb and I put in to revive the Crack Squad during our last two years there. We had more trouble putting together the old Springfields and holding them together against the impact of all that thumping than we did finding volunteers. Everybody wanted to wear the braid! As I recall, we held first drills at the west end of the old fourth floor study hall in Vail Hall, but we had to be careful putting the rifles down so as not to dislodge the ceiling of the old chemistry lab just below. Fritz and I had no directions to go by; somehow, mostly by good memory and occasionally by imagination, we worked out the complete drill with one-pat and three-pat and the rounds of firing (of course) and the Queen Anne's salute and that center-circle pattern . . . I've seen the Crack Squad perform a couple of times since 1946 and have detected little differences, and am content to accept the changes as progress"

"I know the Cadets of St. John's have plenty of worthwhile and some not so worthwhile activities to involve themselves in. They can judge for themselves what is important to them and to their school—it is hard to realize that SJMS is really for the Cadets of today and not for the "old boys" of years ago. I hope today's generation can remember this cardinal principle when, in a few years, they find themselves part of another world. But I do hope that the Cadet Corps will always find within itself the interest and energy necessary to keep the Crack Squad going. Of all the formal associations I recall from St. John's, even including the S-Club, I think it is the Crack Squad that I remember most fondly and, yes, proudly. S-Club membership was based on something you had done already; to be in the Crack Squad meant you had to continue to prove your fitness to belong.

"My generation has its memories This generation will have its memories and, in spite of what they may think right now, they will be pleasant and grateful ones for the most part. The memories are the traditions that hold several generations of Cadets together, and they are a most important part of the continuing strength of the School. I'd like to think that the memory of an excellent Crack Squad will continue to help cement the classes of 1946 (mine) with those of 1967, 1954, 1937, 1925 and all the rest.

Rain Dampens Senior Outing

by Mark Strange

The members of the 1967 graduating class spent the weekend of May 5-7 in the beautiful setting of rolling hills at the PECUSA Conference grounds around Lake Webster.

The group left on Friday afternoon under a sky covered with cold, gray clouds. Unfortunately the sky decided not to show its blue colors until the morning of Monday, May 8. Thus, with the weather being as it was, the Cadets were secluded in their cabins most of the time and any outdoor activities were deterred to those not wishing to face the consequences that the bad weather offered. Nevertheless, looking on the brighter side of things, there was much time available for sleep, rest and discussion. This time was used.

The morning meals on Saturday and Sunday were optional, letting those who wished to sleep-in do so. All other meals were required but this wasn't necessary as the quality of the food was excellent and the cooks left nothing to be desired.

In short, the trip was most relaxing and a pleasant change in atmosphere, although the bad weather did make it somewhat less enjoyable.

Jerry Hudder of Kansas Wesleyan University accompanied the group and was in charge of the retreat program.

Thirty-six of the 38 graduating seniors made the trip.

We have so many fond memories of this time of year, not to mention about 1500 color slides for visual reminders. We are truly proud and feel fortunate to have been a part of St. John's for a brief time."

Mrs. Albertson, mother of Greg, Class of 1963, called to say they will not attend because Greg will be graduating from college on June 2. Old Boy Requests Cadet Pen - Pals

A St. John's "old boy", Geron J. Spray, is serving with the Peace Corps in Korea.

He wrote "The Skirmisher": I feel that I can be of assistance in helping the Cadets become better acquainted with Korea and its people. I think the best way would be for the Cadets that are interested to send me their names and I will get them pen-pals at the high school where I teach. This also helps the Korean student to get to know something about the United States besides what they see in third rate movies. I hope we can get something started that will be of benefit to both the Cadets and the Korean students."

Spray's address is: Geron Spray, Inchon Technical High School, Inchon, Korea.
