WELCOME STATE HIGH SCHOOL BASKETBALL TEAMS

The Faculty and Cadets of St. John's Military School take this opportunity to wish all officials, participants and visitors of the State High School Basketball Tournament a hearty welcome and to extend an invitation to visit the school sometime during their stay in Salina.

CADET CORPS ATTACKED AND CONQUERED

Battle Brief But Decisive—Cadets Surrender Unconditionally

On Sunday, March 17th, a detachment of troops from Marymount Academy descended upon St. John's and utterly defeated the Cadets. Traveling in high-powered cars, they attacked with such speed that defense was useless. They stormed the gate, and deployed upon the steps before the Cadets could fire a single shot.

The attacking force was numerically inferior to that of the Cadets, but their weapons were irresistible, and the Cadets were forced to surrender unconditionally. Once this was accomplished, the Marymounters lost no time, but required the Cadets to guide them on a tour of inspection of the conquered property.

From cellar to tower and from parade-ground to gymnasium they went, their sharp eyes not missing a single detail. The Crack Squad was still groggy from the shock of the first charge, but they recovered sufficiently to give an exhibition drill in honor of the conquerors.

The victors retreated as quickly as they had come, taking with them a number of autographed year-books for souvenirs of battle. The Cadet Corps is planning a counter-attack, and it may be ordered soon.

Lest the reader should be mistaken, it may be well to say at this time that Marymount is a girl's school, and that the group that "attacked" came as very welcome guests. It is true, however, that they conquered us, but their weapons were laughing eyes and saucy smiles; and we fear that some of us suffered serious wounds in the encounter, for more than one ring bearing the "M A" crest may be seen on a Cadet's finger. As to the counter-attack, we are looking forward to it eagerly.

Miss Rebecca Fishman, of Tribune, Kansas, was at St. John's last Thursday to see her brother, Cadet Irving Fishman.

WHO is to be proclaimed "The Battalion Sweetheart?" That is the question that is foremost in the minds of the Cadets at the present time; and it is a question that only time will answer. The contest to decide WHO is the most popular girl opens with the publication of this issue and the winner will be announced in the next.

Only one thing is fairly sure, and that is that her name is now on our "Dance List," but that does not disqualify those that are not. It is more than likely, however, that the lucky(??) girl has attended one or more of our dances, for what girl that is popular among the Cadets has not?

Several of the members of the Cadet Corps attended the DeMolay Spring Party which was given Friday, March 15th. Those that were present were: Lieut. Wallace, Edward Orr, Frank Vidler, Charles Ripley, John Myers, and Jack Firstenberger.

The Cadet Corps have been making plans for their Spring Dance, which will be held as soon after Easter as is practical, and from all reports this dance will be the best of the year. Several dates have been made already, even though the date has not been definitely announced. We are hoping that "the powers that be" at Marymount will grant the girls the privilege of attending.

CRACK SQUAD TO WELLINGTON

The Lion's Club of Salina has invited the Crack Squad to drill for the State Convention to be held May 6 at Wellington, Kansas. The Salina Lions hope to make it possible for the Crack Squad to represent Kansas at the National Convention at Louisville, Kentucky. This is worth working for fellows!

Blind Date

you two were practically engaged, the way that you've been talking."

"That's just where you come in. We'll fix Betty up with you, and tell her that I'm going to be out of town. Then I'll arrive 'back in town' just in time to get a last minute date with Connie."

"That will sound pretty thin, Tommy, and I don't like the idea of it anyway. If you want to take Connie, why don't you be straightforward about it?"

"If I did, I'd lose Betty sure. I think that she's about fed up with my running around anyway, and I don't want to lose her this late in the game."

"If you care that much about her, I should think that you'd want to take her yourself."

"To tell the truth, I'm not—well—er—that is, I just don't want to take her, that's all."

"I can't see your reason, but if you want to turn down a date with a real girl like Betty for a dizzy blonde like Connie, why, I guess that it's none of my business. I'll be glad to take her, and if you hadn't been monopolizing her for the last six months. I think that I'd have lost my woman-hater reputation long ago."

"Thanks a lot, Walt! I wish that we could make it a double date, but I don't think that we'd better. I'll fix it all up. Shall I do it as it's always done in the movies—have you meet her at a certain corner at a certain time, and wearing a red carnation in your lapel?"

"Omigawd! Don't be like that! Just tell her that I'll call for her—I've been planning on buying a car anyhow."

"What? Now I know that you've gone nuts! Walter O'Brien, the man who can make a dollar go farther than George Washington did, is going to buy a car. You must let me help you pick it out."

"I don't think that I will, Tommy. You'd probably talk me into a scarlet sport roadster or something like that, and I want to get a nice quiet coupe, and at a reasonable price."

"You would! But suit yourself—I know you will anyway."

The days passed rapidly, and Tommy was much surprised when Walt's name led his on the list of honor graduates. The eve of the big dance was at hand, and Walt had his date. Tommy and he were dressing, and as they dressed, they discussed the impending event.

"Say, Walt, hand me that collar button by your foot, will you? I'm going to buy steel studs after this—then I can keep track of them with a magnet."

"Sure thing, Old Dear. Have you any clean handkerchiefs? I can't find a one."

"Say—if my last clean shirt has soot on the front, I'm going to declare open season on all laundry-men!"

"That's a pretty neat little buggy that you have outside, Walt." Walt walked over to the window and looked lovingly down on his little coupe.

"Yep, she's O. K. But I don't think that Betty will think much of it after chasing all over the country in that chariot of yours."

"Don't kid yourself, Walt. It won't make a bit of difference to her if she goes in a Ford or a Cadillac. She's one girl that isn't 'high-hat' in the least."

"Of course! Say, do you know that I never realized just how beautiful Betty is until the other day in Doc Dunn's lecture? I caught myself staring at her, and I guess that I had been doing it for at least half an hour. Gee, Tommy, I almost think that I'm going to fall in love with your girl!"

"You don't want to do that, Walt. I might want her myself again one of these days." Tommy parted his hair with mathematical accuracy and stepped back from the mirror in a characteristic pose. "Well, Walt, cast your eyes on a living exemplification of what the well-dressed young man will wear!"

"I'm afraid that you've got me hopelessly outclassed, Tommy. Connie will be mighty proud of you tonight. But aren't you going to wear your pin?"

"Oh, I'm—er—why, I must have lost it."

"Are you sure that you didn't let some girl get her hands on it? If you still have it, you'd better leave it here, because I hear that Connie is making a collection, and Betty wouldn't like it if she saw Connie wearing your pin."

With a sickly grin on his face, Tommy announced his departure with "see you at the dance", and was gone. Walt watched the vanishing streak of his chum's roadster, a puzzled look on his face.

"Now I wonder what sent Tommy off in such a hurry," he said to himself as he finished dressing. "Surely he didn't take offense at my advice." But the anticipation of the big time ahead drove all other thoughts from his head, and he strode out to his car with a tuneless tune on his lips.

He was thinking of Betty even as he climbed into his day-old coupe, and by the time he had driven two blocks his mind was in the clouds. At ten blocks he was in a daze, and only came to earth when he realized that he had cut two traffic signals and was about to cut a third. He jammed his brakes, and luckily they were as good as the salesman had claimed. He escaped being run down by a street car narrowly.

ARMY FIRSTS WIN

In the third of a series of Basketball games played between the Army and Navy Clubs of St. John's, the Army came out on top with a score of 16 to 10. Although the score seems close, the game was more one sided than it looked. The fast Army team took the offensive from the start and the Navy was hard pressed to guard their goal. Accurate scoring on the part of "Chuck" Ripley, Army Center, was the feature of the game. While the uncanny ability of "Abie" Oppenheim to get himself fouled and to make his free throws count kept the Navy from being swamped. The Navy made a total of 2 field goals to the Army's 7. All of the rest of the Navy's were made by Oppenheim on free throws.

"Chuck" Ripley produced a sensation when he awoke from his lethargy long enough to sink four field goals and become high point man of the game. Whitmore and Wooldridge worked well as guards on the Army team breaking up all of the plays that the Navy succeeded in getting past the first defense.

Roberts and Green played well for the losers while "Abie" Oppenheim was a "deadeye" on free throws.

With three old men back on the Squad next year we can hope to have a fine team. Many of the men who were on the Second Team will stand good chances next year of making the First Team and we would like to call to the attention of the reader the names of the following men who did some good work with the squad this year, Corp at center, Northern at forward, and Caldwell at guard.

To the Seniors we wish the best of luck in their efforts at college basketball and will hope to see them on their college teams.

Mr. Mort Whitmore, of Colorado Springs, Colorado, spent the past week with his son, Cadet Sergeant Paul Whitmore.

NAVY SECONDS WIN

After watching the fast first class game it was quite instructive to be able to sit and watch a very good team beat a very poor team. The Navy seconds had quite an advantage in the fact that five of their men had been playing together on the St. John's Midgets. Making good use of their superior ability they proceeded to swamp the Army 27 to 7.

Ben Mitchell was high point man of the game with 6 field goals to his credit. Jim Marshall came second with 4 goals for the Navy and 1 for the Army.

Mitchell, Fishman, Kintz, Marshall and Hays made a fine team and could score whenever they wished to.

CRACK SQUAD NOW HOLDING REGULAR PRACTICE

The Crack Squad has been holding regular practice for some time in preparation for their coming exhibitions. Each evening after supper sees them out in the gym going through their various movements, and under the able leadership of Lieut. Caldwell they are daily becoming more proficient. The Crack Squad drills require a high degree of concentration, and it is only through continuous practice that they are able to attain their standard of efficiency. We believe them to be one of the finest drilled bodies of men in the state, and it is indeed a pleasure to watch one of their exhibitions. Aside from that, they never drilled better than they did the Sunday that they were watched by twenty-five pairs of Marymount eyes.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Becker, of El Dorado, Kansas, were the guests of Mrs. Becker's sister, Mrs. Roy W. Perkins, last Sunday.

FEBRUARY HONOR ROLL

The Honor Roll, this month has greatly improved over the one for January.

Bishop Mize gave a short talk to the Cadets congratulating them on their efforts and improvements in the past month.

The grades are not exceptionally high, but anyone with a record like Warren's could get by with a little egotism.

The rank is as follows:

1. Warren	92 1/4%
2. Kline	92
3. Shaffer	91 1/4
4. Hays, II	90 3/4
5. Marvin	89 3/5

THE SCHOOL LIBRARY

Sometime in the near future, the school Library, which adjoins the Study Hall will be opened for the use of the Cadets.

The Faculty and the Students have felt the need of recataloging the volumes that we now have, and we hope to acquire more in time.

Cadets Kline and Johnson are occupied in cataloging nearly a thousand volumes, of which the present library consists.

Among the many notable works that we have are two editions of the Encyclopedia Britannica, The New International Encyclopedia, some thirty volumes of the World's Best Literature, and the Messages and Papers of the Presidents.

Mrs. Brown, the head librarian of the Salina Public Library, has offered to render all possible assistance in order that the Library may be opened soon.

RETURN VISIT TO MARYMOUNT PLANNED

When we were visited by a group of Marymount girls on last Sunday, little did we think that we would ever be in their places, with them escorting us through their school and entertaining us; but such is the case. It is planned that in the very near future a delegation of Cadets will visit the Marymount girls in their own home and all the Cadets are looking forward to the event. We sincerely hope that the girls enjoyed their visit here as much as we enjoyed having them, and we know that it will be a pleasure to return their visit.

CELEBRATE PAPER WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mrs. R. R. Shideler and Coach McLean won the prizes for individual high scores and at a late hour refreshments were served.

rowly, and after that kept his mind upon his job of driving.

He pulled up in front of the address that Tommy had given him, and with his knees shaking, made his way to the door. He held his breath as he rung the bell, and was obviously relieved when an elderly woman answered him. She smiled reassuringly, and led the way to an immaculate parlor. She told him that Betty was expecting him, and would be ready in a moment, and repeated the statement at his stuttered request; then she left him to his thoughts.

His gaze wandered over the room, and stopped on a curiously carved stork that was standing on a small box on the table. He went over and examined it more carefully, and curiosity impelled him to press a lever beside the bird. He did so, and was rewarded with a cigarette. He pushed another button, and the stork's little brother presented him with a match.

Just then Betty startled him with a "Good evening, Mr. O'Brien." He whirled about, and when he saw her cigarette and match fell from his fingers.

She stood in the doorway dressed in an evening gown of snowy white and sharply outlined against the blur that was the stairway. Multitudes of tiny curls tumbled this way and that upon her head, and as he stared a faint flush broke the smoothness of her creamy skin. Deep brown eyes peeked out laughingly at him, and ruby lips smiled the most bewitching of smiles.

"Like me?" she ventured.

"Yes," he managed to gasp, "But you are twice as beautiful as I thought you were, and the other day in Doc Dunn's lecture I thought that you were the most beautiful girl in the world."

"Careful, now. From what I have heard of you, that's quite a speech, isn't it?"

"Yes, it is," he admitted, "But, you see, this is the first time that I ever spoke to you, and I wanted to make a good impression."

Rather abashed at what he had said, he helped her into her coat in silence and did not speak again until they were in the car and headed for the dance.

She broke the silence with "Aren't you the O'Brien who was such a star on the football team? And again in Track and Crew?"

"I was on those teams, but I wouldn't call myself a star."

"Listen here, Mr. Modesty, I would. Don't you call running the ball eighty yards against Western starring? Or making up a twenty yard handicap in the relay and winning a Track meet?" Walt wriggled uncomfortably in his seat, and she tactfully changed the subject.

After some ten minutes of cruising Walt managed to find a parking place near the dance, and he was conscious of a hitherto unknown pride in himself as he checked their coats. They walked slowly through the entrance of the ball-room, and the touch of her fingers on his arm sent delightful shivers through his whole body. The immense floor was a riot of color, and the somber note of tuxedos contrasted sharply against a throng of varicolored evening gowns. An unknown somebody in the balcony caught them in the beam of a purple spotlight, and many curious eyes turned toward them. Walt was well known to most

CAMP

St. John's Military School was established in 1887 by the citizens of Salina, under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. It is a preparatory school for boys from 8 to 18 years of age. The capacity is one hundred and twenty boys, who are instructed and sponsored by a faculty of ten men. The course of study and text books are those adopted by the State Board of Education. About fifty percent. of the boys are from Kansas, the rest live in Colorado, Oklahoma, Wyoming, Montana, Missouri and Nebraska.

A modified military system is used as a means of developing neatness, obedience and self-reliance in the cadets. Athletics are offered for all of the boys. Time devoted to studies and recreations is supervised by competent instructors. The aim of St. John's is to develop well rounded men of character.
