THANKSGIVING DANCE IS A GAY AFFAIR

NEW SET OF SCHOOL COLORS FORMALLY ACCEPTED
BY ST. JOHN'S

At nine o'clock on Thanksgiving evening a formal dance was held in the Japanese Gardens down town. The entire corps attended the affair, though at the intermission the younger boys were allowed to return to school.

The Japanese Gardens with its unusual lighting effects and its oriental decorations created an ideal atmosphere for the festive occasion. The orchestra known as "Princes of Personality" furnished excellent music. With the exception of one or two novelty numbers, all the dances were regular one-steps and fox-trots. Whenever they felt so inclined, the couples could go to the floor below the Japanese Gardens where they could get excellent soda fountain service.

During a short intermission early in the evening a most impressive ceremony took place. The corps fell in according to companies and Lieutenant Baker unfurled the new school colors which were the gifts of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar W. Carruth of Herington, Kansas, the parents of Corporal Bob Carruth. Both Lieutenant Baker and Bishop Mize made short acceptance speeches. The latter accepted for the school trustees, the school as a whole, and himself personally.

The Bishop asked Mr. and Mrs. Carruth to come forward and then called upon the former for a few remarks. Mr. Carruth said that at last commencement his wife and he had been impressed by the many medals and loving cups awarded to honored students. They felt they would like to present a lasting gift—one that all the school might enjoy, not merely a chosen one or two. They believed that there was no better school in the middle west than St. John's. To them the black and gold colors were symbolic of education, manhood, and performance of duty.

Mr. and Mrs. Carruth's son Bob served as one of the Color Guard during the ceremony.

SPEAK ON ARMISTICE BEFORE CADETS CORPS

On Armistice Day the hymns sung in chapel were of a patriotic nature. Later on in the morning at a general assembly both Chaplain Mize and Lieutenant Baker made short talks.

Chaplain Mize spoke on the meaning of Armistice Day. He also made a few remarks upon the unknown soldier's grave in Arlington Cemetery and its significance to the American people.

Lieutenant Baker gave a few reminiscences of his days with the Second Division in France. He said his company spent the night of November 10th in establishing a bridge head across a river preparatory for an advance against the Germans. When the Armistice was announced, a feeling of lightness and lack of strain went through the men. All that day the soldiers rested peacefully and slept. Not until night when a German signal flare dump was discovered, did the men have a real celebration.

ST. JOHN'S BAND IS DOING GOOD WORK

The St. John's Band under the direction of Captain Larson is doing excellent work. This school has not boasted of a musical organization of this kind for many years, and inasmuch as most of the boys in the band had to be taught how to play their instruments, the progress has indeed been exceptional. Already the band has learned several marches, and at present are working on the school song. Captain Larson himself wrote out the scores of this piece for the various instruments.

Captain Larson plans for the band to play at all the home basketball games. In the spring Lieutenant Baker hopes to have it go on parade along with the Drum and Bugle Corps and Color Guard.

Several new members have joined the band. These include: Bigley, trombone; Condon, clarinet; Jones P., York J., and Ver Brugge, clarinet; Hausam, bass drum; Willard, snare drum.

Buglers Visit Marymount College

Keraus and Lester Assist in Various Activities on School Holiday

Joe Keraus and Bob Lester of the St. John's bugle corps were special guests of Marymount College on Marymount Day, the anniversary of the accrediting of this institution. Perhaps the most important event of this occasion was the crowning of Miss Marymount. Following the religious service of Benediction in the college chapel, the buglers sounded the flourishes as Miss Marymount and her attendants appeared on the landing of the great stairway. The name of the girl, who had been chosen queen by her fellow students, was announced, and Monsignor Maher of St. Joseph's Church, Salina, made a short speech and then placed the crown upon her head. The Marymount student body in the hallway below cheered and sang the school songs. Then the entire party marched into the dining hall.

Keraus and Lester were also guests at the banquet and dance which followed. During the former they blew attention when it was time for the special program to commence. During the latter they likewise sounded the call for the dancers to take their places for the Grand March.

Christmas Holidays

The time to which the cadets have been long looking forward is nearly here. Very shortly they will be starting homeward to spend the holidays at home.

On the evening of December 18 there will be a farewell dinner with plenty of good things to eat and with stunts and a program afterwards. There will be a lighted Christmas tree, but this year again it will be without presents. Instead of spending money on gifts for one another, the boys decided to give instead a Christmas basket to a needy family in town. Every boy has contributed to this present.

After the dinner is over, then the boys will start leaving for home. Then goodbye to St. John's until retreat on January 3rd, the time when school reopens after the holidays.

ATTRACTIVE GIFT IS GIVEN TO SCHOOL

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar W. Carruth of Herington, Kansas, have indeed shown that they are good friends of St. John's School. On Thanksgiving Day they presented the institution with a magnificent set of Colors. These are made of heavy taffeta and are mounted on seven foot standards.

The National Colors are edged with a regulation gold colored fringe and have cords and tassels of the same color attached.

The School Colors have a burnt orange background in the center of which is the school shield surmounted by an eagle. The shield and its lettering "St. John's Military School, Established 1887" are done in gold leaf and black. The School Colors are edged with an orange and black fringe and have cords and tassels of the same color attached. The standards of both the National and School Colors are surmounted by eagles.

Cracksquad is Headed by Maker

Boys Drill Regularly Certain Evenings in the Gymnasium

About four weeks ago the St. John's cracksquad was reorganized for the year. The old members met and elected Leonard Maker for their captain and voted in new members. The boys in this year's organization besides Maker L., the captain, and Keraus, the bugler, include Bigley, Erickson, Fletcher, Gordon, Haythorn, Kesselring, Maker H., McCoy D., McCarty, Thornton, Willard, and Williams.

On certain evenings a week the cracksquad has practices in the gymnasium. Despite the fact that the boys have not met together many times, they are rapidly whipping into shape.

The cracksquad puts on a Zouave drill, difficult to execute as there are no commands given. Besides the manual of arms it calls for fast movements with a cadence more rapid than double-quick time. It requires deep concentration and absolute execution.

The St. John's cracksquad has made many public appearances in the past. It has drilled before audiences in many Kansas towns and cities, and on the stage of the Orpheum theater in Denver.

Sunday School Team

In addition to his duties here at St. John's Captain Mosher is coaching in basketball a team of boys which has been formed from the Christ Cathedral Sunday School. On certain evenings a week the team practices in the St. John's gymnasium. About every week it is booked to play a game at the Y. M. C. A. down town with groups from other Sunday schools.

Captain Mosher should be very much gratified with the showing the Cathedral team has made so far. In the very first game played with the Grand Avenue Methodist Church team it won 28 to 4.

At present Mitchell and Tissaw, two cadets of the St. John's Junior School, are playing with the Cathedral group. The work of these two boys has been very good.

ARMY-NAVY TEAMS EACH WIN A GAME

FIRST TEAM GAME GOES TO NAVY
—ARMY'S SECOND TEAM WINS VICTORY

First Game

In the game played on December 2 between the first teams of the Army and Navy clubs, the score was 20 to 0 in favor of the Navy.

In the first quarter the Navy kicked to the Army's 10 yard line where it was returned to the 25 yard line by Finder, the Army full-back. The splendid line of the Navy held for three downs and blocked a punt on the fourth. The Navy took possession, and Fletcher, the main cog of the Navy's offense, smashed the center of the line for eight yards, putting the ball on the Army's 6 yard line. Again Fletcher struck where there was a big gap and went over for the first score. He then kicked a perfect placement. The Navy then kicked to the Army's 10 yard line where Finder returned it to the 34 yard line just before the quarter ended.

During the second quarter the Navy completely dominated the field. Towards the close Fletcher made a brilliant run of forty-five yards and was finally brought down on the Army's 15 yard line.

In the third quarter the Army kicked to the Navy, and McCarty returned the ball to the 30 yard line. Then the Navy started a passing attack that could not be halted for four first downs. Then the Army intercepted a pass on their own thirty yard line. The Army opened a passing attack but to no avail. They then kicked to the midfield where the ball was returned to the Army's 37 yard line. On the first play Anderson circled the left end for another score. The kick for the extra point was blocked. The quarter then ended.

In the fourth quarter the Navy made a first down on its own 45 yard line when a pass from Fletcher to Anderson was good. On the next play Fletcher faded way back and threw a long pass to York deep in the Army's territory. York was hauled down on the 6 yard line. On

BOYS SING IN CHOIR AT THE CATHEDRAL

Every Sunday morning the entire corps attends the eleven o'clock service at Christ Cathedral. Since the resignation of the Very Reverend Frederick W. Golden-Howes early this fall, the Cathedral has been without a dean. Bishop Mize and Chaplain Mize have been in charge of the services, being assisted occasionally by visiting clergymen.

Captain Larson has charge of the choir and in addition to the regular members has augmented it with a number of cadets. These are Pace, Thornton, Erickson, McCoy D., Anderson, VerBrugge, Keraus, Haythorn, Thornton, Williams, Ashford, Lester, Hausam, and Bigley. Occasionally Hausam helps out by playing selections on the violin. The boys attend choir rehearsal every Thursday evening, after preparing the lessons of next day in a special study hall.

Christmas

'Twas the night before Christmas
'N all thru de joint,
Dey wasn't nobody movin',
'N dar's all of it I loint.

Our Christmas vacation begins tonight and a "Merry Christmas" editorial is always expected of us. Such articles, needless to say, give us a lot of trouble. Why, says you? Well, simply because everything which could possibly be said on the subject without putting you to sleep has already been said so many times that it's not even funny any more, so just exactly what are we supposed to do?

Furthermore, the heading on this little bit of well-intended foolishness is absolutely not supposed to have anything to do with the article. In fact, it has no connection with it at all except, perhaps, to catch your attention so you will devote a couple of your precious minutes to reading it.

Now that the reason for everything has been explained, and you can easily see how foolish it would be to try to say anything really serious in these inches, the Skirmisher does at this time take it upon itself to wish you the very merriest of Christmases and the happiest of New Years.

The St. John's Ghost

(In four parts)
Part I

St. John's School often has been compared to a medieval castle. Its artistic towers, crowning the great building five stories high, loom up like beacons and are visible from most points within a radius of several miles.

What old castle is without its ghost? Something would be out of harmony with things in general if a spook had not at one time or other climbed the school's broad winding staircases and glided along its hollow corridors.

But, St. John's is not going to prove disappointing. It once had a ghost—a very active one, which was so clever that it set many persons wondering and caused cold chills to creep down the spines of even the most brave.

Old Isaac, the drunken workman, was really the cause of the whole bewildering affair. When the foundations of the school were being dug way back in 1886, the old man was careless enough to venture out upon some newly blasted earth. The result was a cave-in, and he and his wheelbarrow were swallowed up. His companions never could forget his screams when he realized his doom nor the look of terror in his bloodshot eyes—so red and such wells of intensity. His cries seemed to mingle with the fierce wind at that time sweeping down from the plains to the north. For months afterwards as the high walls of St. John's arose and the large rooms and graceful towers took form, several of the superstitious workmen often imagined they heard old Isaac's screams in the strong winds which blew incessantly.

Captain Decimal, the headmaster of St. John's, simply could not sleep that windy night. Something had aroused him just as he was dozing off—he was under the impression he had heard the bedroom door of the commandant's daughter, Una, open and close. But, he was not sure. His mind began to wonder over many things. He thought of his own motherless daughter, Octave, eighteen years old—her bold imprudent ways, her familiarity with the cadets, her infatuation for one of the student officers, Captain Leo, and her hatred for Una, who had won the young man's favor. Why could not the two girls of so nearly the same age be on good terms?

"Help! Help!" Captain Decimal sat up in bed and fingered his grey moustache. Were those cries actual or merely the product of his own imagination?

"Help! Help!" There could be no mistake. The cries came from somewhere below. But, all was silence when he looked out into the hallway. Descending the great staircase, he found all peaceful there. The headmaster returned to bed, feeling much provoked with everything in general.

"Who's there?" Captain Decimal who had heard someone creeping in the hallway opened his door and called out. It seemed to him he saw something dash down the corridor. He peered into the darkness and saw a figure in white standing in the far end of the hall. The head seemed to have an unnatural glow and was partially covered with a hood. The captain noticed particularly the grey beard and the eyes which in their extreme redness seemed like coals of fire. A feeling of fear took possession of him as he thought of old Isaac, the drunken workman who had perished just three years before. The headmaster's short thin legs were shaking, but he had strength enough to totter to the bedroom door of Colonel Nemo, the commandant, and knock loudly.

"You see, Captain Decimal," said Colonel Nemo the next morning after breakfast, "you must have had a nightmare. I hope daylight has brought you to your senses. Last night in our inspection we found everything as usual; the cadets were all in their places and the teachers' quarters seemed quiet. Surely you will admit your mistake. Your nerves are bad, and you should rest up for a few days. Do you still think we ought to tell the Bishop about it?" The jovial colonel smiled as he looked into the face of the pale little headmaster.

"I know what I am talking about," declared Captain Decimal, "but possibly it is best not to worry the Bishop, at least at—"

"Worry me about what?" asked Bishop Boniface as he entered the room; "And by the way, Colonel, someone was prowling around last night. See what I have found in the hallway. A piece of card board upon which the letter 'I' has been burnt. What a queer looking thing! Captain Leo found one like it not far from his bed. He says he is sure it wasn't there when he went to sleep."

Both Colonel Nemo and Captain Decimal looked at the card. A creepy feeling ran down the headmaster's spine as he thought again of old Isaac.

STATE LAKE PICNIC

On a Saturday afternoon early in November Captain Brown took eighteen cadets on a picnic to State Lake, a pleasure spot twenty miles due north of Salina. As soon as possible after classes were over, the party left in the school truck.

Upon arriving at the pavilion the boys scattered in all directions. Many were disappointed that the row boats usually available for rental had been stored away for the winter. However, when they found an old scow partially sunk in a remote cove, they felt better. They launched it and kept it afloat by continual bailing.

Other boys enjoyed exploring the shores of the lake and hiking over the grassy hills. The ducks were evasive of the boys trying to creep upon them unawares, but one boy captured a crow instead. The bird did not relish its captivity, and a cadet found it a little risky to put his hand too near its bill.

At five-thirty the crowd assembled at the picnic grounds located near the upper end of the lake. Over a fire the boys toasted wienies and ate the rest of the supper, consisting of baked beans, bread and butter, pickles, and fruit. The party then made a hurried departure and arrived back in Salina just about dark.

OFFICERS MEET

St. John's School is now being used as headquarters for the Reserve Officers in Saline County. They meet for two hour sessions on the first and third Thursday of each month. On these occasions a Regular Army officer from either Fort Riley or Manhattan conducts classes in some phase of military theory.

Lieutenant Baker, who belongs to the organization, has been asked to speak before it in the near future. He has chosen for his subject "Infantry Tactics."

It is most likely that the St. John's cadet officers will be invited to attend some of the sessions.

CULVER VICTORIOUS IN FOOTBALL GAME

On November 15 St. John's played Culver on the Culver field. The game was hard fought on both sides, but Culver came out victorious 13 to 6.

The game began by Fletcher's making a kick to the Culver 2 yard line. The Culver half-back caught the ball and ran twenty yards before being brought down. The cadets' opponents ran two off tackle plays, gaining nothing, and on a third down gambled on a long pass which was good for a touchdown. The kick for the extra point was good. Culver then kicked off to the cadets who lost the ball on four hard smashes at the line. Culver passed on their first play, and it was intercepted by Fletcher who ran twenty yards before he was brought down.

As the second quarter began the cadets tried two passes which were incomplete. Fletcher kicked out, and the opponent's safety man was downed in his tracks. The Culver half-back started the left end for fifteen yards. The St. John's line strengthened and held four downs. Fletcher again kicked out of danger. Culver tried a pass which was intercepted by Haythorn who ran ten yards before he was brought down. Anderson then ran around the end for five yards just as the half came to a close.

Culver started the third quarter with a pass which was good for ten yards. On the next play they were thrown for a five yard loss. They then kicked the ball out of bounds on the cadets' 18 yard line.

The fourth quarter began with a determined drive by the cadets. They took the ball deep down into their opponent's territory. There a Culver man intercepted a short flat pass and ran for a touchdown. The kick for the extra point was blocked. Culver then kicked off, and St. John's opened a passing attack. First a pass from Fletcher to York was good for thirty yards and another pass to Haythorn was good for a touchdown. The kick was blocked for the extra point. Culver received the ball and the game ended. The score was 13 to 6 in Culver's favor.

ARMY-NAVY TEAMS EACH WIN A GAME

the next play Fletcher again crashed the center of the line to score. The extra point was made by Anderson. In the remaining minutes the Army filled the air with passes that were knocked down. The whistle blew with the final score 20 to 0 in the Navy's favor.

Second Game

During the entire game between the second teams the Army held the upper-hand. In the first quarter the battle was evenly matched, but in the opening minutes of the second quarter, the Army began circling the ends. Williams, their full-back, scored by running around the end. The extra point was made by a plunge on the line.

The second half was slow and unspectacular. The only real run of the day was when Hausam ran for the sixty yard line only to be brought down from behind. The Army was in a scoring position but were halted by the end of the game. The score was 7 to 0 in the Army's favor.

THANKSGIVING WAS A HAPPY OCCASION

Thanksgiving was bright and clear with a decided cold snap to the atmosphere. Soon after breakfast, which was an hour later than usual, the entire corps attended a service conducted in the chapel by Bishop Mize. The hymns, and Scriptural selection were appropriate to the occasion. The Bishop made a few remarks upon the reasons why people should be thankful for their many blessings. Some are often inclined to forget God and to boast too much of the powers of man for building such wonderful cities and making such vast improvements. But they have forgotten that God himself put the land here with its wonderful resources, and furnished the sunshine and rain which are so important. God alone has made it possible for them to enjoy the many things that have come their way.

After chapel the football game was played on the St. John's athletic field between St. John's and Solomon High School. At two o'clock a big turkey dinner was served in the dining hall. Two extra tables were set up to take care of the invited guests. All the tables were provided with an individual turkey and almost groaned under the weight of the many good things to eat.

After dinner the cadets were allowed to go on pass, and many attended the picture shows. At seven o'clock a light supper was served cafeteria style in the dining hall. At nine o'clock came the big dance in the Japanese Gardens down town.

Captain Larson said music saved his life last summer. When a flood washed away the house where he was visiting, his friends sought refuge on some floating doors, and he accompanied them on the piano.

Hearn: "Did you see that charming girl smile at me?"

McCoy C.: "Yes, the first time I saw you I had to smile too!"

GRAMMAR'S CANDY CO.

We specialize in CHRISTMAS CANDIES

MANY CADETS HELP OUT IN CARNIVAL

The carnival given one evening recently in the Guild Hall by the Christ Cathedral Sunday School was indeed a pleasant affair. Practically all the members of St. John's were present, several of whom had a part in making the occasion such a success.

Among the teachers assisting were Miss Mize and Captain Mosher who had charge of the fishpond. Captain Larson had general oversight of the Bingo table.

A number of the cadets assisted with the selling of tickets to the various attractions. In the room containing the odd people Pace and Randall were dressed up in feminine attire, the former representing a bearded lady and the latter, a Spanish dancer. Before each group of visitors Randall demonstrated some of the graceful and fancy steps at which he excelled. Walter York impersonated a midget who, if the big cigar in his mouth counted for anything, was indeed a "tough guy."

Kesselring, Willard, and Erickson had charge of the "Hall of Horrors" located in the basement. The groups visiting this attraction were served with many "chills and thrills." Kesselring proved himself very proficient in explaining the strange sights to be found in this "spooky" place.

The carnival provided many forms of entertainment. Probably one of the most attractive features was the floor show put on by pupils of the Mary Ellen Rathbun School of Dancing. The entertainers made three different appearances during the evening.
